The Stark County Board of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honored to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.

We continue to deliver pre-school and school age services through the education we provide. We are equipping our students, more than ever, to return to school districts. We recognize that our adult services will be transitioning to private providers and that TWi, a not-for-profit, will be taking over our Higgins and West Stark administration is a crucial and mandated responsibility of the Board but is also partially part of our strategic plan process that took place during 2016, we have committed to budgeting process that can enable us to stretch our local taxpayer dollars. In fact, as local and federal levels will continue to decline. We continue to look for efficiencies during our shipping process with the Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities is pleased to present our annual report. We are honoring to be working with you our annual report. We are making tough decisions so that we are the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people with disabilities.