Bullying is unwelcome or unreasonable behavior that demeans, intimidates or humiliates people either as individuals or as a group. - Non-verbal: Using obscene gestures or facial expressions that convey threatening messages or insults, which can include rolling of one's eyes, glaring, etc.
- Psychological: Use of exclusion: socially or physically excluding or disregarding a person in work- related activities, setting people up for failure, excessive supervision, belittling, disregarding opinions or suggestions, criticizing in public, inflicting menial tasks not in keeping with normal job responsibilities, not allowing the person to speak or express himself or herself (i.e., ignoring or interrupting), etc.
- Cyberbullying: Bullying through the use of technology or any electronic communication. Posting slurs or rumors or displaying defamatory, inaccurate, disparaging, violent, abusive, profane, or sexually oriented material about an employee on a website or other online application. Sending e-mail, text messages, IM, or leaving voice mail messages that are mean or threatening.

Any employee who feels he or she has been victimized by bullying shall report the matter to his or her supervisor or to Human Resources in accordance to procedure. An investigation will be undertaken and employees found in violation of this policy will be disciplined, up to and including termination.
